HONOR MEMORY OF THE PRINCESS KAIULANI

EXERCISES HELD AT THE KAIULANI SCHOOL YESTERDAY.

Pupils Revere the Birth Anniversary of the Late Princess—Songs and Other Exercises in the High School of Palama.

Kaiulani School, the one in Palama named after the late Princess Kaiulani, had exercises yesterday in honor of the twenty-sixth birth anniversary of their late friend. The exercises should have been held on Wednesday, but were deferred on account of the absence of the principal of the school from the city. The following was the program:

To Princess Kaiulani.
Kaiulani Robert Louis Stevenson
Extract from Honolulu Newspaper
Bells Aloha O Sleep, O Sleep
Kaiulani (Queen)
Henry Wadsworth Kinney
Bells Nearer, My God, to Thee
Hawaii Ponoi.

To Princess Kaiulani.

(By Robert Louis Stevenson.)
(Written upon the occasion of the Princess leaving her home here for Great Britain.)

Forth from her land to mine she goes.
The island maid, the island rose.
Light of heart and bright of face.
The daughter of a double race.
Her islands here in southern sun
Shall mourn their Kaiulani gone.
And I, in her dear banian shade,
Look vainly for my little maid.
But our Scott's islands, far away,
Shall glitter with unwonted day,
And cast for once their tempests by,
To smile in Kaiulani's eye.

Kaiulani.

The late Princess Kaiulani was greatly beloved and respected by all who knew her. Her personal attractions were many and notable. She had a pleasant face, a sympathetic voice, and was gracious to all. She was a scholar of many accomplishments, was a musician, a painter and a most entertaining conversationalist in several languages. She dearly loved all her own people and was friendly to the worthy foreigners.

Death is no respecter of persons. It cuts the most sacred ties. It pays no heed to station or age.

Princess Kaiulani had had her full measure of sorrow. She was left motherless at a tender age. She was taken abroad. In contemplation she always had high hopes and splendid ambition with relation to her career among her people. Those hopes vanished all at once like when the sunlight seemingly leaves when a black and heavy cloud comes out of the mountains. She commanded the highest respect by the attitude she assumed when the severe disappointments came. But it is grand to think of her as looking to the future instead of grieving and idling over the past.

I want to add my flower to her wreath, as I am sure does every parent and child in Hawaii. Love is a flower transplanted from heaven, and all who knew Kaiulani loved her. There is a lesson in the life and death of this lovely young woman. Life here is fragmentary, broken, incomplete. It is the lot of all to meet with disappointments and reverses and to fall to realize fond hopes or noble ideals. For that reason all should look to another life. In the long ago a man came to this world from heaven and told us that the things which had been broken here would be mended in the hereafter, that the opportunities could be worked out satisfactorily. She has gone to that home. In your lives follow her example. Do not waste time upon the past to look and struggle onward and upward.

Sleep, O Sleep.

Now sleeps the darling of her race:
From all is hid her lovely face.
For warmth of sun but death and cold
Have brought to her we mourn and weep,
And pray to God her soul to keep.
By tender hands her form was borne
To that old church she would adorn.
By priest and choir her dirge was sung,
While throbbing hearts with anguish wrung.
Since her sweet spirit hence has fled,
And knew her body was but dead.

Kaiulani.

(By Henry Wadsworth Kinney.)
The forest thrives in the summer air
And sung as the wind from the ocean
blew,
And stronger and fairer each slender tree
In the shade of the royal palm tree grew.
And the wind came in from the dark blue sea,
But now it grew rough and harsh and cold,
And roaring in fury it came to fight
The dark green forest, its friend of old.
The royal palm spread out its arms
And fought for the children it loved so well,
Till, broken and shattered, its mighty crown
Through the crashing boughs of the forest fell.

Then came a lull and the wind did rest,
The trees even bent in their hopeless grief.
But high in the top of the royal palm
Shone the bursting bud of a bright new leaf.

They loved the bud and their sweetest songs
They sang for it as the sunlight shone.
Until one morning they did awake
And found the life of their darling gone.

The winds swept in from the dark blue sea,
The forest is bending its weary head.
The trees are drooping and falling down,
Their hope is gone—the royal palm is dead.

A NEW BUILDING.

One is Planned for the Old Bay Horse Premises on Bethel Street.

Within the following year another large business building will probably be erected in the central portion of the city. The property owned by the Robinson estate, on Hotel and Bethel streets, embracing a series of lots fronting on both streets and running into the middle of the block and known as the old "Bay Horse" premises, have been under lease for a long time to George Houghtaling, and this lease expires July 1st of next year.

It was learned yesterday from the management of the estate that this property will not be let again under the same conditions, and that different arrangements will be made, inviting applications for a lease of the land for the purpose of erecting a business building. Several applications, including one from the present lessee, have been filed with the management, but these have not yet been definitely considered, and the matter will be held in abeyance for some time yet. The management, when it makes arrangements, will endeavor to encourage the building of a modern business building, and at the expiration of the present lease will entertain propositions to this effect. The present rentals from the property are considered too low for the return of centrally situated lots, and the conditions are to be changed to meet the increased valuation of the real estate.

PROPOSED CONSOLIDATION.

Meetings Yesterday For Consideration of Matter.

President C. L. Wight and President John E. of the Wilder and Inter-Island Steamship Companies, respectively, together with committees from each company, met yesterday in Mr. E. Na's office for consideration of the proposed plan for consolidation. On the day previous a meeting was also held, the matter being left over until yesterday afternoon, when a full attendance of the members of the committees was on hand.

The meeting was without definite result, although the discussion pointed to definite action in the near future. It was found that further data would be required before proceeding with the business of arranging terms, and the meeting adjourned subject to call that the desired data might be obtained. President E. Na stated yesterday that a definite conclusion would probably be reached by tomorrow night.

NEW DESKS ARRIVE.

Eighteen Set Up For Carriers in the Post Office.

Eighteen carrier desks were moved into the Post Office and set up for use yesterday. The desks arrived on Wednesday by the S. N. Castle from San Francisco. The desks are specially arranged for the convenience of sorting and keeping in order the mail of the carriers, each carrier to have his own desk, and the mail for each street having its own particular compartment, with pigeonholes.

The new desks will be a great convenience for the carriers and will save much confusion and delay. They are of handsome polished oak and quite attractive in appearance.

EXECUTIVE MEETING.

Expense of Forest Fires Reaches $5,000—Other Business.

At the meeting of the Executive Council yesterday morning Superintendent Boyd reported that $5,000 had been spent in fighting the Hamakua fires. It is proposed by the bureau, also, to indemnify those who have spent money in the district. H. N. Almy's hotel liquor license at Waikiki Inn was renewed. The flag pole on the grounds of the Judiciary Building was condemned as being unsafe. It will be taken down and given to some school.

Pet Dogs Are Tattooed.

From the Baltimore American.

A decidedly novel occupation which has of late been noticed is that of tattooing the names of their owners upon dogs. Several months ago there appeared in northwest Baltimore a young man who is engaged in that pursuit, and during the time he remained here did a good business. Among the dogs which underwent the operation is pretty little fox terrier belonging to Charles F. Wohner, which rejoices in the name of Boozie, and a fine bred bull terrier, Jip, the property of the Chewings Brewing Company. Both animals bear upon their breasts, where the hair grows thinnest, the names of their respective owners.

Contrary to the belief of some that the operation is a cruel, painful one, those who have seen it performed declare that the animals apparently experienced very little pain. The operation last about fifteen minutes. The animal is usually held by two men, one having hold of the hind legs, while the other holds the front paws. With a set of very fine needles, the operator then goes to work, deftly pricking the letters into the skin, just deep enough to draw a few drops of blood. Then he pours the India ink all over the wounds, or, rather, scratches, and the operation is over. In a few weeks the sores are completely healed and the animal bears during the remainder of its existence an unmistakable mark of identification. The price of an operation is 50 cents.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy Saved His Boy's Life.

"I believe I saved my (nine year old) boy's life this winter with Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says A. M. Hoppe, Rio Creek, Wis., U. S. A. "He was so choked up with croup that he could not speak. I gave it to him freely until he coughed and in a short time he was all right. For sale by all druggists and dealers. Benson, Smith & Co., agents for Hawaii."
